GET YOUR MUD ON!

Woodside gets planting with Armadale Gosnells Landcare Group

Each year, Armadale Gosnells Landcare Group (AGLG) facilitate the planting of 100's of thousands of plants in local parks and reserves in Perth's south east suburbs. On a beautiful spring day in September, Woodsides Reservoir Development team spent the day at John Oaky Davis Park planting wetland and dry land plants in and along the river.

"It was great to spend the day making long term differences to the environment and chatting with colleagues I don't normally chat to."

Tasked with the massive challenge of planting almost 4,000 plants the team got right into it with several people getting into gum boots and waders to plant in the muddy river. At lunch time a staff member from the neighboring Wilkinson Homestead Museum popped by to give a talk on the history of the land the team were planing on and the story of pioneer John Oaky Davies.

Volunteering helps improve:

Sense of well being and happiness

Awareness of wider social issues

Pride in my company/job
